doi:10.1351/goldbook.M03995

molecular nucleation

in polymers

The initial crystallization of a small portion of a macromolecule, after which further crystallization is thermodynamically favoured. Molecular nucleation may give rise to a new crystal or increase the size of a pre-existing one.

Source:
Purple Book, p. 85

 Copyright © 2014 IUPAC