

desolvation

in flame spectroscopy

The process of evaporation of the solvent from an aerosol of fine droplets (the droplets being the result of nebulizing a solution). Desolvation converts the aerosol into a dry aerosol consisting of a suspension of solid or molten particles of the solute.

Source:

Orange Book, p. 165