

isotopically enriched ions

When the abundance of a particular nuclide is increased above the level at which it occurs in nature and is incorporated in a molecule, the term 'isotopically enriched ion' is used to describe any ion enriched in the isotope.

Source:

PAC, 1991, 63, 1541 (Recommendations for nomenclature and symbolism for mass spectroscopy (including an appendix of terms used in vacuum technology). (Recommendations 1991)) on page 1549