

lyate ion

The anion produced by hydron removal from a solvent molecule. For example, the hydroxide ion is the lyate ion of water.

Source:

PAC, 1994, 66, 1077 (Glossary of terms used in physical organic chemistry (IUPAC Recommendations 1994)) on page 1137