

reduced sample

A representative part of the primary (composited or gross) sample obtained by a division and reduction process. Typically the mass approximates that of the final laboratory sample.

Source:

PAC, 1990, 62, 1193 (Nomenclature for sampling in analytical chemistry (Recommendations 1990)) on page 1205